Friday 28th November

This Week

We've had another busy week as the build up to Christmas markets and performances begin! The children have now finished writing their non-chronological reports about pangolins. In Maths this week, we have been focusing on multiplication using and creating arrays as well as multiplying by 10 and 100. Our focus in Geography this week has been on volcanoes. We have explored the different parts of a volcano and looked active, dormant and extinct volcanoes around the world.. In Art, the children have continued sketching landscapes inspired by our local area. They have looked closely at features such as trees, buildings and natural shapes. Science this week was looking at the bones that make up the human skeleton.
